

BIG CRUISER FLEET IS AIM OF BRITISH GROUP AT GENEVA

English Hold Stubbornly to Plans Menacing
Power of U. S.

GIBSON HITS BACK AT PROPAGANDA BAIT

Lack of Frankness by the London Delegates Is Causing Delay.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 26 (By A. P.).—Cruisers, and again cruisers—that apparently is Great Britain's aim at the tripartite naval conference, according to information available today. Many of those who are following developments were not surprised if before long the British delegates suggested total tonnage figures considerably higher than the maximum contained in the American project, which is 300,000 tons.

Should such be the case the American delegation must decide whether it is really worth while signing a treaty, which, while estab-lishing a limitation, pushes that limit so far skyward as to be merely a bid for an accelerated naval race in this type of warship.

A review of the first week of the naval conference confirms the impression created when the British and Japanese plans first were announced that problems had been raised vitally influencing the security of the American people. Japanese interpretations of their own project have removed many objections to it from the American standpoint, as it is seen that the Japanese want a navy only 70 per cent as strong as the American navy and are inclined to abandon their original demand to construct an unlimited number of small submarines.

But the British proposals remain without change, as viewed from the American angle, and apparently are calculated to take strength from the United States fleet of auxiliary warships. Since Great Britain's battleship fleet is admittedly stronger than the American, the British admiral's suggestion to reduce the size not only of battleships and aircraft carriers, but also cruisers, which would permit the British to install 6-inch guns on their mighty merchant greyhounds of the sea, is looked on with growing repugnance in American circles.

An English spokesman, seeking to convince the commissioners of the excellence of the British plan from an American standpoint, exclaimed, "Why, if Gibson agreed to reconsider certain of the Washington decisions and reduce the size of cruisers, he would prove himself one of the biggest and most courageous men in American naval history."

Mr. Gibson's reported reaction to this, as well as to similar suggestions thrown out by the British, is that if he accepted the British proposals he might as well decide now to abandon all thoughts of revisiting his native shores and fix his residence abroad permanently.

Press Note Powerful.

Never has there been an international conference affecting vital national interests where the press has played such a weighty role, or where there has been such frank recognition of the power of the press. During the past week all three delegations, British, American and Japanese, have been fighting their naval battle virtually in the public prints. The British inaugurated the plan of holding daily powwows with the newspaper men to explain and defend the British position. The Americans and Japanese quickly fell into line, all realizing that in the long run only those concessions can be permitted which have the support of public opinion in the home lands.

Admiral Saito has his Japanese press to think of and would like to go home with something "in his kimono sleeve." A considerable part of the British public is declared to be hostile to big naval expenditures and will expect First Lord of the Admiralty W. C. Bridgeman to bring back a definite limitation program. The American delegates are bearing in mind the importance of American public opinion as voiced by the newspapers.

British Lack Frankness.

One of the main causes of the continuing differences between the British and Americans is that the former have refrained from coming out squarely and saying: "We will accord America parity in every type of warship." Also, instead of talking about a definite total tonnage in the various categories as a possible basis of agreement, the British have focused all their guns on the target of reduction in the size of individual warships, which the Americans are convinced will further push the United States naval strength to the vanishing point.

This is deemed especially true for 10,000-ton cruisers which the Americans consider vital for long-distance operation, protection of the Panama Canal and general defense, in view of the paucity of American naval bases compared with the British, who have four bases within striking distance of the American coast.

Comet, Acrobat of Ether, Gives This Age No Thrill

Pons-Winnecke Orb Looks Like Tiny Dash of Light to Star-Gazers Here; Only 3,500,000 Miles Off Into Space.

Equipped with telescopes, binoculars and improvised astronomical instruments of varied character, thousands of Washington's professional and amateur stargazers looked heavenward last night as the Pons-Winnecke comet approached within 3,500,000 miles of this planet.

They saw a tiny dash of light in the southeastern sky, trailed by a small, fan-shaped tail. Disappointing it proved to many, not greatly dissimilar to the thousands of stars in whose midst it hung. To the scientifically inclined, however, it represented the first visit to the earth in six years of one of the host of sturdiest bodies of the ether.

Although the comet will be visible with the aid of telescope until Sunday night, last night was its nearest approach to the earth in the course of its orbit. It was the nearest approach of any comet to this sphere since 1770, when Lexell's comet passed a scant 1,400,000 miles away.

Watchers at the Naval Observatory last night failed to note anything unusual in the progress of the great body as it hurtled through the skies. Only one meteor, and that a faint one, was observed to leave the comet.

As the Pons-Winnecke reached the point closest to the earth, it was found to be just 30 degrees east, and a little south, of the brilliant star Altair, according to scientists at the Naval Observatory.

They declared it to be traveling in the same general direction as this planet, although gaining 10 degrees on the earth each day it pursues its course, and this, despite the fact that it was the nearest approach of any comet to this sphere since 1770, when Lexell's comet passed a scant 1,400,000 miles away.

FARM RELIEF ISSUE AND LOWDEN BOOM STIR SOUTH DAKOTA

Gunderson to Start Fight for Illinoisan Under Coolidge's Eyes.

M'NARY-HAUGEN PLAN
PUSHED IN ASSEMBLY

Ill Feeling in Minnesota Over the Failure to Ask for Murphy's Counsel.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.
(Staff Correspondent of the Post.)

Rapid City, S. Dak., June 26.—Evil factors, viewed in President Coolidge's light, have developed with a purpose of checking the friendly atmosphere which he is creating out here.

From down State the hot prairie breezes bring the word that former Gov. Gunderson has announced that a Lowden movement would get under way immediately, and again Representative Dickinson, of Iowa, one of the House leaders for the McNary-Haugen bill, has appeared before the South Dakota legislature, now in extra session, urging the Dakotans not to desert the cause.

Mr. Gunderson frankly has in mind doing something in behalf of Lowden "right here under Mr. Coolidge's nose." Every one with whom this reporter has come in contact, including the official holding politicians of the State, is very much worked up over the manner in which the President has been advertising their State. Mr. Gunderson and those of his mind naturally realize that there is a strong feeling of appreciation on the part of the Dakotans for this.

There are students hereabouts, however, including those who have nothing to do with the Lowden movement, who assert that Mr. Lowden, who has asserted that Mr. Gunderson's advocacy of him will certainly do him no good and mayhap will do him a lot of harm.

Dawes Better Liked.

Mr. Gunderson went out of the gubernatorial office the first of this year simply because the Republicans of the State would not go with him and the first Democratic governor the State has had in 26 years came in. Mr. Gunderson's last candidacy was, in fact, the occasion for a big party split.

Somewhat there is the impression, too, that Vice President Dawes would be more acceptable in the State than Lowden, at least to the rank and file of people. It is believed, for that matter, that the leaders would have a hard time selling the latter to the rustle electorate.

The people at large seem to look on the former Illinois governor as a "nice fellow who can make a good speech," as they are wont to express it. They consider him quite an imposing figure on the speaking platform, but they have a way of speaking in monosyllables out here and putting a punch into their remarks.

Flight to Aid Deaf Girl
Causes Deaths of 3

Sioux City, Iowa, June 26.—In an effort to restore her speech and hearing, a 21-year-old deaf girl and two others were instantly killed at Winnetka, S. Dak., when the airplane in which they were riding crashed from a height of 3,000 feet, the Sioux City Journal says.

Colapse of the wings when the pilot was trying to right the plane after a long drop was the cause of the accident. The drop was made in an effort to restore the speech and hearing of the girl.

The dead are Herbert M. Hansen, 24, S. Dak. pilot; Harry G. Moorehead, 26, S. Dak., and Miss Lulu Hoffman, of Winnetka.

Boys Attempt to Drop Dynamite Into Trains

Chicago, June 26 (By A. P.).—Poor marksmanship of three boys, who stole eight sticks of dynamite and then attempted to toss them into smokestacks of passing Illinois Central passenger trains here probably saved the lives of many last night.

The boys, Michael Rizzo, 14; Dante Falco, 12, and Carl Lapina, 12, took the dynamite sticks from the war show at Soldiers' Field, broke them into quarters, stationed themselves on a foot bridge over the tracks and dropped piece after piece toward the trains' smokestacks. All were wide of the mark.

Then they lit a fire, placing a stick of dynamite in it. Rizzo's hand was torn off and the Falco boy was cut severely.

The police hurriedly went over their route of mischievousness and recovered sixteen broken sticks of dynamite on the railroad right of way.

GIRL, WADING IN RIVER WITH PLAYMATES, DROWNS

9-Year-Old Daughter of Capt.
G. W. Armitage Loses
Life in Potomac.

ANOTHER CHILD ESCAPES

Nine-year-old Edna Marie Armitage, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. George W. Armitage, of 2426 Nineteenth street northwest, was drowned yesterday afternoon while wading at the fishing shore at Fairland, just below Mount Vernon.

The child had left home early in the morning to go on a party with other children at the shore. Her mother and father were prostrated when they learned last night of the tragedy.

Details as to how the little girl met her death were lacking. With several other children of the party she had gone in wading, and after playing about near the shore for a while, Edna disappeared. She is believed to have stepped into a deep hole.

One of the other children who had been with her, also stepped into the hole, but succeeded in reaching shallow water.

Edna's body was recovered. Efforts were made to resuscitate her, but they were futile. She was placed in an ambulance and taken to Alexandria Hospital, where physicians worked for more than an hour in an effort to revive her. The body was brought to her home here.

Capt. Armitage is on duty in the office of the Quartermaster Corps.

Youth Lives 25 Days With His Neck Broken

Macon, Ga., June 26 (By A. P.).—John Gabbert, 20, who has surprised local physicians by clinging 25 days to life after his neck had been broken in a dive into a shallow pond, was near death tonight.

In the Macon Clinic, where the youth has lain since June 1, he enters alternate periods of consciousness and unconsciousness, but many days ago he took his attendants with a wan, agonous smile that he knew the end was near. He also suffered several dislocated vertebrae, but is able to take light nourishment and his respiration has not been affected.

in 1925 Reach Highest Total, Says Report.

U.S. GIVEN $13,837,237

Individual Receipts Reveal Decrease of $97,815, Survey
by Treasury Reveals.

Combined individual and corporation income tax collections for the District in 1925 represent an increase of $2,325,975 over returns for the preceding year, according to a statistical income tax survey completed yesterday by the Treasury Department.

The total of $8,119,191 realized on corporation tax collections, combined with the $5,718,046 in individual income tax receipts, brought the combined income tax returns for the District to a total of $13,837,237. In 1924 the combined receipts amounted to but $11,511,262.

Climbing to $8,119,191, corporation tax returns reached their highest total since enactment of the law. Internal revenue figures indicated a $1,035,669 increase in the net income of District corporations in 1925 over 1924. A peak of $94,408,229 was reached, as compared with $47,457,560 the year before. Although national income tax returns showed an increase of $30,289,793 in 1925 over the preceding year, individual tax receipts in the District dropped $47,815 during that period.

$5,718,046 Is Collected.

The report revealed that $5,718,046 was realized in the District on individual income tax collections in 1925, as compared with a national total of $734,855,183. The increase in national tax collections was recorded despite a 4.4 per cent decrease in the number of income tax returns, and 14.66 per cent in the total net income.

There were 34,543 fewer returns filed in the District in 1925 than in 1924, and the reported net income for the local territory showed a corresponding falling off of $52,958,554 over 1924. According to the summary, 1.04 per cent of the estimated population of 514,000 filed returns. The average income tax paid in the District, however, was $132, representing an increase of $58 over 1924.

Ninety-seven more corporations filed returns in the local territory in 1925 than in the preceding year, bringing the number of filers to 1,753. Of these 672 reported no net income for the year, as compared to 714 reporting no net income in 1924. These submitted reports of deficits to the extent of $4,510,598, which sum was shown to be $2,169,230 lower than the reported deficits in 1924.

National figures indicated that although 430,073 corporations filed returns, only 232,334 reported net income, which totaled $9,583,883,697. They paid a tax of $1,170,331,206. This figure, combined with the national individual tax realized, swells the total receipts for 1925 to $19,048,669,389.

BYRD IS LAND-LOCKED DAY OR TWO, HE SAYS

Squalls Follow Deluge That

FOUR IMPATIENT TO FLY

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 26 (By A. P.).—The three-motored biplane, America, in which Commander Richard E. Byrd and three companions purpose to fly to Paris, will be unable to take-off tomorrow and may remain land-locked for a "day or two," because of adverse weather conditions between here and Newfoundland, the United States Weather Bureau in New York informed Commander Byrd today.

The bureau announced that a detailed report would be completed late tonight, but that this report was not expected to change the present outlook for a get-away before Tuesday at the earliest and perhaps later.

The present squalls, which are spread up the coast, struck Roosevelt Field last night in a sudden fury that destroyed the hopes of Commander Byrd and his flight companions, Pilot Bert Acosta, Lieut. George C. Noville and Berni Balchen, for a take-off at dawn today.

Shortly after the rain stopped and the wind had moderated, Balchen, Noville and Acosta, who had not been informed that there would be no take-off today, appeared at the America's hangar, prepared for the flight.

After scanning the gray, early morning skies, they expressed the opinion that, if the wind shifted from south to southwest, it was possible that the America might take the air about 7 a. m. or shortly after. A westerly wind is a material aid to the America's take-off.

The word quickly spread that a flight was still a possibility and a scattering of spectators, determined to see the

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 26 (By A. P.).—Adrift in a squall on Great Salt Lake on a raft made of three railroad ties nailed together, L. C. Jaskala, of Lakeside, Utah, and his bride of six months were being searched for tonight by employees of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Jaskala, a telegraph operator in the employ of the railroad, and his wife were bathing near the shore, using the raft as a float. Spectators said that a sudden off-shore wind arose, blowing the raft rapidly away, and it soon disappeared in the gathering squall.

Fear was expressed for the safety of the couple as the lake was running high and the timy raft is incapable of withstanding the buffeting of the waves.

SMITH AND CARTER HOPE TO TAKE OFF FOR HAWAII TODAY

Triple Race Between Army
Navy and Civilians Is Close Affair.

San Francisco, June 26 (By A. P.).—Ernest L. Smith, air mail pilot, and Charles H. Carter, his navigator, were feverishly shoring up preparations tonight for their take-off toward Honolulu, and observers agreed that the start would be made before sundown tomorrow.

Announcement that their rivals, the two Army fliers, would wait for the arrival of Gen. Mason Patrick, chief of the Army Air Service, gave Smith and Carter a good chance to start ahead of them.

Army, naval and civilian aviators moved swiftly today preparing for the aerial conquest of the Pacific.

Ernie Smith, the air mail flier who is making his preparations to beat his competitors to the take-off in the 2,400-mile nonstop flight to Honolulu, worked throughout Saturday night to have his plane on the ground at the Oakland municipal airport

OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS

METROPOLITAN

"Framed," starring Milton Sills, at the Metropolitan Theater for the week, meets all requirements of a good picture. There is heart interest, action, vindication. The cast is strong and the acting excellent. The plot is a Singleton, building strongly from the first flash on the screen to the fadeout.

The story opens in France, showing a young officer of the French army framed as guilty of the death of 500 brave Frenchmen by sending them into an unwarranted position before the enemy. Cast out of the Army he seeks to bury himself in the diamond mines of Brazil. Here, as mine boss, he is framed again, by a suitor of the daughter of his employer, between whom love has been engendered as the result of a thrilling rescue of her in the mine, where she had gone sightseeing. Then follows a series of adventures, a fever-infested swamp of the back country of Brazil, confession on the part of the treacherous suitor and a happy reunion of the lovers in France.

The story is from George W. Sutton's novel, "The Dawn of Tomorrow." Sills plays with his usual forcefulness, meeting each rising situation with his characteristic ease and competence. Natalie Kingston, as the only feminine figure in the picture, forestalls criticism by having everything her own way. But one gets the impression that Diane Laurens might have been more effectively acted and the picture not have suffered thereby. But after all, "Framed" is a Sills picture, and as such registers distinctly.

Added attractions for the week include a Bobby Vernon comedy of no particular merit other than to show off the ally propensities of the comedian Bobby. There is an excellent Will Rogers travelogue through Holland of some length. In addition there is the Metropolitan World Survey and two thoroughly enjoyable musical numbers by Daniel Breckin and his conspirators against time.

COLUMBIA

Vivid and emotional is "The Understanding Heart," film feature opening at the Columbia yesterday. Full of pathetic and humorous moments, the story of Monica Dale of the understanding heart has that appeal of the struggle of men and women against the forces of nature. This story is primarily the romance of Monica Dale, forest lookout, and Tony Garland, ranger, but the good work done by the United States Forest Service in times of forest fire comes in for a big show and leaves a deep impression.

"The Understanding Heart" teems with strong characterizations. Monica Dale, brave and resourceful; Tony Garland, eager ranger and more eager lover; Bob Mason, friend, lover and escaped and hunted convict; Keely, shallow and cowardly; Sheriff Bentley and Uncle Charley, humorous old drinking pals—a motley array of characters whose conflicting personalities bring about dramatic situations. A murder, false conviction, escape; the struggle to prove innocence, the thrilling fight against a forest fire, a novel and thoroughly modern denouement, contributed to an interesting story.

Joan Crawford, as Monica, has an entirely different role, which does more justice to her individual beauty and ability. Rockville Fellows is excellent as the hunted Mason, and Francis X. Bushman, Jr., establishes himself by his work and looks—as Tony. Carmel Myers has a particularly difficult part as Keely, which she plays with convincing abandon.

The photography is especially excellent, with its beautiful views and with its blinding trees during the fire. It is also a point of some interest to note that the theme follows the book by Peter B. Kyne, but the incidents in minor details and the character of Mason differ somewhat. Mabel Normand comedy, with Creighton Hale, Columbia Magazine, International Newsreel and overture selections from the "Student Prince" complete the enjoyable bill.

KEITH'S

Pope it was who wrote the line, "If you live to please you must please to live."

Vaness, the dancer, coheadlined at Keith's this week, evidently never heard of this, an observation which might well be painted on the door of every so-called star in the theatrical firmament.

At last night's performance the little lady of the silver heels out up much like a spoiled child; threw her fan into the audience, presumably at the trap drummer, who failed to keep perfect time with her toe-tapping, walked off stage in the midst of a number and acted generally all round in a peeved manner. Perhaps this is temperament. It may go in the reviews; but not, oh, never, in vaudeville.

During the course of 52 weeks vaudeville presents its patrons with many top-notch acts. Vaness has a good one, as such affairs go; but it is not, by far, the seventh wonder of the world; nor is it the best here this season—or in other seasons. Of course, when Vaness undertakes to show vaudeville patrons what she can do—all may be different. As 19 is a young chap by the name of Sonny Hine, another dancer, runs away with her part of the performance.

Polly Dooly, sensible enough to know what the patrons want, is the other part of the coheadline—and so comes near being the best part. He has with him Cliff O'Rourke, billed as a new singing star; but it's unfortunate part of it for O'Rourke is that just before the Dooly act the management puts on Norberto Ardelli, an opera tenor. His vaudeville debut, Senor Ardelli last night held the Keith patrons enthralled. At the piano is Mickeylaw Vok.

Lottie Atherton, in a unique dance offering, opens the bill. Eva Edmond and Pat Grant follow, and Julie Nash and C. H. O'Donnell bring a comedy sketch, "Almost Single," a travesty on married life that has its guffaws. Robey and Gould, guitar-peter comedians, go over rather well. It remains for the Carr Brothers and Betty to furnish one of the best closing acts of the season by the name of "The Demonstration." The usual house features round out the bill.

EARLE

A meritorious bill rolls out its golden nuggets at the Earle this week where the featured film attraction is "The Perfect Sap" costarring Ben Lyon and Pauline Starke, and the featured stage attraction is "The Girard Ensemble," a hold-over from last week.

"The Perfect Sap" is a comedy of extremely broad proportions taking most of its running time to get across its plot. The story is the old "amateur detective" one varied somewhat from the usual. Ben Lyon has the sap role, playing it with a gentle touch but commensurate with the demands of the plot, finishing strongly and far in advance of his rival. Good interest marks the lead part, since there was a tumult of particular strangeness to be signalled. Or it was reasonable to pick out this aberration for her to express if that was the way of it.

The heroine is not Salome of old, but a little French girl who tried to behave like her and found she couldn't go through it. She is a tool and spy and thief for one of those rich and wicked scheming noblemen so indispensable in Paris of the movies. While resting from this toil in the country she falls in love with the most necessary handsome young American, who takes her for a simple peasant lass. Her boss calls her to Paris and persuades her, as a last task to earn her freedom, to steal certain papers which prove to belong to her lover. When he finds out what she is, he tells her what, so very plainly that her love takes a turn for the worse. With Salome in mind the demands of the wicked Count Zanko that he should kill her insulting lover. The count already has him secure in a dank and dismal dungeon and willingly agrees. The rest is exciting and needs no telling. The young American escapes from the count and the dungeon, but not from his queer-souled sweetheart, who, of course, is a nice girl after that.

Walter Pidgeon is the young American and Taylor Herbert is the villain. Both are good, and so are many who play smaller parts. The film is well directed in detail, and as for the story, nobody has to believe it. Faye Courtney pleases the audience with a series of songs. The orchestra plays the overture to "Blond Time." "What an Excuse" is scarcely excusable for a comedy, but the news pictures are fresh and interesting.

PALACE

An excellent bill of light comedy, jazz music, clever dancing and singing is presented for the patrons of the Palace this week.

On the vaudeville portion are Nina Olivette, specialty dancer, and late of "Queen High," who captured much of the applause; the three Bennett Brothers in eccentric and comedy dancing filled several scores; the eleven Yale Collegians, with their jazz band, who are up to the average of this type, and Buddy Doyle, singer and dialectician. "Prize Sally Levy," starring Sally O'Neil, supported by Roy D'Arcy, Kate Price, Tenen Holts and Charles Delaney, is certainly a scream, both from the standpoint of story, situations and screen titles. It is not a picture requiring any considerable effort on the part of any of the characters, except to provide reason for a laugh. It is an old subject treated in a slightly different manner than most of the Irish and the Jew in mixed marriage, the romance of the daughter (Sally) with the Irish motorcycle cop and the wealthy Jew. A number of new situations are introduced, ingenious titles are used, and the introduction of more acting for the juvenile characters makes it possible to please all ages. Sally O'Neil is excellent; Roy D'Arcy has a character quite different from his usual run; Kate Price, as the mother, carries the Irish type well.

The overture this week introduces another novelty, "A Bag of Musical Tricks," an opportunity for the players of four instruments to show what they really can do, pianist, banjo, trombone and saxophone, in solo work with the orchestra accompaniment. The stage settings and lighting effects form a unique part of the entertaining bill, as well as the cool temperature inside the house.

International News and Aesop's Fables complete the bill.

RIALTO

With a roll of her ample orbs and a quick parting of her lips, Alma Rubens is better able than most of her sisters to signal strange tumults in the soul. So it was natural for the director of "The Heart of Salome," at Rialto this week, to select her for the leading part, since there was a tumult of particular strangeness to be signalled. Or it was reasonable to pick out this aberration for her to express if that was the way of it.

The heroine is not Salome of old, but a little French girl who tried to behave like her and found she couldn't go through it. She is a tool and spy and thief for one of those rich and wicked scheming noblemen so indispensable in Paris of the movies. While resting from this toil in the country she falls in love with the most necessary handsome young American, who takes her for a simple peasant lass. When he finds out what she is, he tells her what, so very plainly that her love takes a turn for the worse. With Salome in mind the demands of the wicked Count Zanko that he should kill her insulting lover. The count already has him secure in a dank and dismal dungeon and willingly agrees. The rest is exciting and needs no telling. The young American escapes from the count and the dungeon, but not from his queer-souled sweetheart, who, of course, is a nice girl after that.

"What an Excuse" is scarcely excusable for a comedy, but the news pictures are fresh and interesting.

WARDMAN PARK

A double-feature bill is being presented at the Wardman Park Theater this week. One is "Crainquebille," distinguished by the fine acting of Maurice de Feraudy. Mr. de Feraudy is a star of the Comedie Francaise, and is perfectly at home in the Anatole France story.

The other is "Salome," from the play by Oscar Wilde. Nadimova made this one some time ago, and it still stands forth as one of the few truly artistic American productions.

LITTLE THEATER

"The Last Laugh" was brought back to Washington yesterday. One could hardly mention a picture more worthwhile or welcome for any number of revivals. The Motion Picture Guild is responsible, and it is being shown this week, at the Little Theater.

Here is a perfect picture. In direction, tempo, acting, camera work, and technical proficiency, it is impeccable, and as an item of entertainment it has seldom been surpassed. To a student of cinema technique, the kind of person for whom the programs at the Little Theater are partly intended, it is a singularly interesting document, for it is entirely without subtitles, and relates its beautiful story with the camera alone.

There is also a funny animal comedy, and the first of a series of travelogues coming to the Little Theater.

600 SEE LA ROCQUE AND MISS BANKY WED

Police Are Called Out to Hold Throng; Streets Closed to Traffic.

Beverly Hills, Calif., June 26 (By A. P.).—A guard of nearly 100 policemen was called out this afternoon to hold back throngs of the curious at the marriage and later at the wedding reception of Rod La Rocque and Vilma Banky, film stars.

The police guard was formed at the Church of the Good Shepherd, where the ceremony was held and later formed at the hotel where the reception took place. Several streets between church and hotel were closed to traffic to prevent congestion.

Cecil B. De Mille, film producer, to whom La Rocque is under contract, was best man, and Sam Goldwyn, the producer, who brought Miss Banky to the United States from Hungary two years ago, gave the bride in marriage. More than 600 motion picture folk attended the reception.

The couple departed by train for Vancouver, B. C., where a two-months' motor trip through Western Canada will begin.

Park for Spooners Is Urged by Sheriff

Kansas City, Kans., June 26 (By A. P.).—Lack of "spooning places" was urged by Sheriff Powers, of Wyandotte County, as a champion of Cupid.

The sheriff today advocated a "spooning park" where those smitten by Cupid's dart may "bill and coo" without interference. Such a park should be under supervision, however, the sheriff qualified.

"Why, young folks nowadays have no place at all for their spooning," the sheriff declared. "We can't allow it on the highways. Parking cars there endangers life."

"Young folks are going to spoon; they have since time immemorial and they will until the millennium is reached."

AMERICA SUPPORTS NATIONALISTS' AIMS, CHINESE ARE TOLD

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, in Speech, Says U. S. Hopes for Unification.

REPRESENTATIVE DYER GIVES PLEDGE OF AID

Dictator Chang Prepares to Resist South; Big Guns
Taken to Peking.

(Special Cable Dispatch.)
Shanghai, June 26.—Officials of the nationalist government of Nanking, including Quo Tai-Chi, the commissioner of foreign affairs, C. C. Wu, minister of foreign affairs, and prominent members of the Kuomintang, including C. T.
Wang, former premier, and Wang
Chung-Hui, former minister of justice,

were hosts tonight of Senator Burton
K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, and Guy D. Goff (Republican), West Virginia, and Representative Leonidas C.
Dyer, of Missouri, and their wives, as well as local American officials.
Senator Wheeler, in a speech, declared the American people feel kindly toward China. They do not want anything in the Far East except China's friendship, and are particularly friendly toward the nationalist movement, hoping that the Chinese will rise to the occasion, unify their country and develop a civilian government.
He said the Americans desire to help China elevate its living standard, and in the event that the nationalist movement succeeds in unification of the nation the United States will prove sympathetic with China's struggle for freedom and a system of government enabling China to enjoy equality with the other nations. He declared he was convinced that the purpose of the nationalist movement is to give China equality with the West, and America is sympathetic. He made a special appeal to Chinese women, and complimented them on their part in the revolution.

Will Stand Against Europe.

Mr. Dyer declared President Coolidge's China policy was supported by the American people, who hope to see the present revolution result in the establishment of China's sovereignty. He said the United States has always stood behind China and the European powers desirous of China's dismemberment,
and will do so again if necessary.
"We want to see China, the great republic of the Orient, able to stand on its own feet," he continued. "We hope China will respect the rights of Americans in China, the same as America respects the rights of Chinese in America.

"When China has become unified the United States will be ready to help
it in its industrial development, raising the standard of living and providing useful labor for China's millions."
C. C. Wu, foreign minister, responded, saying the nationalist government is not anti-foreign, but against the system which gives the foreigners
a superior position to the Chinese in China. He said the nationalists are trying to place China on a plane of equality with the other nations. "The nationalists merely are trying to abolish the foreigners' special rights, which no nation with self respect could put up with."
He urged the American legislators to exert their efforts to obtain recognition for the nationalist government.
He hoped the United States would take the lead in this respect and would take the lead in the negotiations for equal treaties with China.

Siege Guns at Peking.

Peking, June 26.—Generalissimo
Chang Tso-lin today directed the promulgation of an order for the remita-nce to Peking of all the revenues in the territory obedient to Peking. This includes only two of the eighteen provinces, Chihli and Shantung, plus Manchuria, and two areas of Inner Mongolia, the entire territory comprising proportionately with that of England to the United States.
The generalissimo decided not to pro-

migrate the revenue mandate to the remainder of China. Instead he is offering peace and amnesty upon the sole condition of the rejection of communist rule.
Handicapped by the lack of rail transportation facilities, all of which were brought north by the retreating columns, the Southern forces are making slow progress in Shantung. However, foreign observers anticipate the capture of Tientsin, capital of Shantung province, within a month. More time probably will be required to threaten Tientsin at which point within a week the total foreign strength will be 8,000 men. These include three American, two British, one Japanese and two French regiments, and a battalion of Italian marines. There are 2,800 other foreign troops at Peking.
The American forces include airplanes,
tanks and motorized artillery.
Preparing to make a stand on the Pao-tung-ku-chang line, the Mandchurian forces are yielding the Yalu River line. Much artillery including siege guns, is being massed at Peking for the defense of the capital.
The impression obtains in well-informed circles that Marshal Chang will be able to hold the new line owing to lack of coherence of the southern factions unless their onslaught is coupled with a blow from the northwest. Precautions against such an attack have been taken by the dispatch of forces to a point 87 miles from Peking.

BERTAUD SIGNS FOR AIR HOP TO ROME AND RETURN

Take-Off in Fokker Plane
From Roosevelt Field Between July 15 and 25.

AERO IS BEING PREPARED

New York, June 26.—Lloyd Wilson Bertaud, United States mail pilot, who was originally cast to make a New York-to-Paris flight in the Bellanca-Wright plane which was finally guided to Germany by Clarence O. Chamberlin, has signed a contract to fly to Rome and back in a Fokker trimotored plane, it was learned today.

The contract calls for a take-off from Roosevelt Field between July 15 and July 26, at the option of Bertaud. The second party to the contract was Bradford Merrill, acting as agent for William Randolph Hearst. The sum of $20,000 was posted as a forfeit by Mr.
Hearst, who reserved the right to cancel the contract in the event that Commander Byrd flies to Rome and back before Bertaud takes off, or that Clarence Chamberlin returns to the United States by air.

Representatives of the builder of the plane, Anthony K. Fokker, who also designed Commander Byrd's plane, were signatories to the contract. Workmen were at once engaged to overhaul the Fokker monoplane in its hangar at Hawthorne Heights, N. J. The plane, when put into shape, will be flown by Bertaud to Roosevelt Field, Long Island,
some time next week, where everything will be made ready for the New York-to-Rome flight.

Bertaud, it was learned, obtained an option held on the plane by a group of Cleveland business men, and this was the basis on which the New York to Rome and back contract was executed on Thursday night. Bertaud also is a resident of Cleveland.

While additional details of the contract could not be learned, it was said that Bertaud would receive at least $100,000 for the flight.

Like Lindbergh, Bertaud, because of his experience in the mail service, is accustomed to flying in all sorts of weather. He has been on furlough from the Postoffice Department since early in the spring, when he had planned to navigate the Bellanca-Wright plane to Paris. But his difficulties with Charles A. Levine, the backer of the Chamberlin flight—who
at the last moment, unannounced, joined Chamberlin in the flight to Germany to try to find a way around the governor of that expedition.

Boat Stanley Used To Be Put in Museum

Paris, June 26 (By A. P.).—A small boat, 40-feet long, which Henry M.
Stanley used in his explorations on the Upper Congo is to be brought to France
by the government as a museum relic.

Stanley used this boat when he was representative of the International African Association, from 1878 to 1894.
The association was formed to further discoveries in Africa long after Stanley's famous trip to find Livingstone.

The boat will be shown at the Colonial Exposition soon to open at Ostend.

M. BRIAND'S FOOLISH GESTURE.

President Coolidge is said to have expressed doubt that Ambassador Herrick is bringing from Paris the text of M. Briand's proposed treaty "outlawing war" between France and the United States. It is highly creditable to Mr. Herrick to doubt that he is permitting himself to become a party to such a foolish proceeding.

The New York Times, however, prints a dispatch from Paris stating positively that Mr. Herrick has such a document. The dispatch says:

Foreign Minister Briand's draft proposal for peace between the United States and France, which Ambassador Herrick is bringing with him to Washington, is understood to be one of the simplest diplomatic documents ever written. It states merely that the two countries heretofore agree to abstain from war or threat of war against each other. The text was drafted by M. Briand himself. In one respect it is unique. It does not invoke any principles. All high-sounding sentiment and all generalities are omitted. It simply outlaws war.

On Saturday Premier Poincare told the American Club in Paris that all France would rejoice at the signature of a pact of perpetual amity between France and the United States, "such as that proposed by Foreign Minister Briand."

If Messrs. Poincare and Briand had only done the United States the honor of glancing at its Constitution they would have saved themselves from the ridicule that will attend their proposal when it is received.

The United States will not make a treaty "outlawing war," or agreeing to abstain from war. If the President and Senate should be so misguided and ignorant as to make such a treaty it would be a mere scrap of paper, without validity.

The treaty-making power of the United States can not rob Congress of any of its powers. The power to declare war can not be taken away from Congress, by treaty or otherwise.

There are existing treaties in which the United States agrees that there shall be peace between this country and other countries. But there is no treaty that directly or indirectly attempts to deny to Congress the power to declare war.

A treaty is not supreme law unless it is made under the authority of the United States—that is, under the authority of the Constitution. The Constitution sets bounds upon the treaty-making power when it grants other powers to Congress. War can not be declared by treaty. A treaty can supersede a declaration of war, but a declaration of war can also supersede a treaty, even a treaty outlawing war, if the United States should ever be so foolish as to make such a treaty.

Messrs. Briand and Poincare are either ignorant of the nature of the United States Government or they are deliberately throwing out a smoke screen to hide the fact that France is failing to ratify an agreement it has already signed with the United States—an agreement to pay its debts. This empty gesture of eagerness to "outlaw war" between France and the United States may also be intended to offset the bad impression created in America by France's refusal to participate in the naval conference at Geneva.

Before the United States enters into any new agreement with France it will insist that France ratify the debt agreement. But whether France ratifies that agreement or fails to arrange for paying its debt, the Briand proposal to "outlaw war" will be regarded by the United States as not only absurd, but offensive, in view of France's attitude on naval limitation. It is not the habit of the United States to indulge in misleading phrases or to encourage others in the practice.

Many university professors and other pundits who take upon themselves the duty of guarding the American conscience and guiding American policy are seeking to cancel the debts owed by foreign countries to the United States. These "internationally minded" gentlemen are anxious to get the United States into the league of nations and its court. They hail the Briand proposal as a stroke of inspiration. At one fell swoop, by a treaty, the United States and France are to "outlaw war." They are filling newspaper columns with their propaganda, which attempts to conceal the naked fact that France refuses to ratify the agreement to pay her debts or even to join in a conference to prevent the overbuilding of navies.

The American people can not be fooled by this anti-American propaganda. They have not empowered anybody to trade away the right of this country to go to war. That right will be exercised by Congress whenever the interests, honor or independence of the Nation can not be maintained in peace. No treaty can "outlaw" war. War may break out at any time, involving France with other nations, and French aggressions against American neutral rights might make peace shameful on the part of the United States. Ten years ago a belligerent trampled upon American rights and no treaty "outlawing war" could have kept Congress from declaring war and directing the President to carry on the war until Germany was defeated.

Peace between France and the United States does not depend upon a treaty. No treaty can insure peace. The proposal to enter into a treaty "outlawing war" does no credit to M. Briand's intelligence or sincerity.

SOFT COAL DISAGREEMENT.

Efforts of operators and miners in the central competitive coal field of Pennsylvania to reach a new wage agreement have failed. On July 1 the bituminous mines in that section, producing under normal conditions 69,000,000 tons a year, will be closed down. The owners' last offer was a reduction in wages varying from 15 to 20 per cent under the existing scale. The miners refused to agree to anything other than a continuance of the existing rate of pay.

The breakdown in the negotiations is another step in the losing fight that the operators and miners in the union fields have been making against the competition of nonunion territory. More than 60 per cent of the bituminous coal produced is now mined in the nonunion fields of Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee. These districts, because of lower operating costs, have been taking the market away from mines forced to deal with union labor. When the Jacksonville agreement, signed in 1924, expired, union operators suggested a cut in wages that would enable them to meet nonunion competition. They warned their employees that without such cooperation they would be unable to keep going. That situation is now at hand.

Fortunately for the consumer the stocks on hand and the output of the open shop mines have prevented any hardship since the first breakdown of negotiations on April 1. Non-union operators insist that they can continue to supply the demand through increased production. If this is true, the effort of union labor to keep its hold upon the coal industry will have been seriously weakened. If the nonunion mines should fail to meet all needs, next winter's stringency will give rise to a public demand for a settlement with the union miners.

COST OF POPULARITY.

Popularity always exacts its toll. Col. Lindbergh knows now that a sudden rise to fame entails being a slave to the public. His popularity, of course, has brought numerous ways to attain a fortune, so that the cost of popularity in his case can not be measured in dollars and cents. George Ruth can measure the cost of his, however, in the coin of the realm.

George Ruth, better known under the sobriquet "Babe," plays baseball for the New York Yankees. As a general thing, save when he suffers attacks of bad batting eyes, he enjoys the applause and acclamation of his fellow men. He realizes, however, that popularity sometimes turns to dislike, and he has done everything in his power to keep himself in the good graces of the public. Recently he filed an appeal with the Treasury Department, alleging that during 1924 he expended the sum of $9,000 for the purpose of establishing and maintaining good will to the extent of entertaining sports writers, press agents and others similarly situated, in order to constantly keep himself before the public. Babe Ruth's popularity, therefore, costs not less than $9,000 a year.

Whether or not the Treasury will grant the exemption has not yet been decided. Only this has been settled—that the cost of popularity is great, and that the income of a ball player has to be put to divers and sundry uses. Who would think that Babe Ruth, king of swat, would have to pay for applause?

REFORM OF LAW PRACTICE.

Need for legal reform, from within the profession, continues to be a topic with which many agencies deal. Within the week, the Association of Grand Jurors in New York, former Senator George Wharton Pepper and Judge Henry A. Fuller, of Luzerne County, Pa., have considered the subject. In the opinion of the grand jurors and Senator Pepper the fault lies among lawyers themselves. The verdict of Judge Fuller places the blame upon "ill-advised modern legislation."

"In spite of the adequacy of existing laws," say those New Yorkers, whose grand jury service has brought them into close contact with their subject, "prohibiting and punishing such acts as perjury, knowingly receiving stolen property, conspiracy, fraud, extortion, blackmail and loitering, which is so prevalent about our courts and prisons, their enforcement is problematical, due largely to the bold opposition of certain lawyers."

"We must realize," according to Senator

Pepper, "that it is foolish to allow practitioners the liberty and latitude which they are no longer trained to use with restraint. The practice of law, once a profession, now a business, must be regulated by more drastic rules of conduct than in the past, and rules once adopted must be enforced to the limit. By slow evolution, new principles and new traditions will be developed, quite as worthy as those that have lost their power. But in the interval we must recognize that the bar can not be trusted with the freedom from control which was once its proud prerogative."

Judge Fuller in refusing to be a candidate for reelection gave one of his reasons: "Loss of respect for the law under ill-advised modern legislation, which has led me into the bad judicial habit of overexercising my own notions of justice and good sense."

In these three expressions the bench, bar and citizens, who have aided in the processes of the law, unite in condemning modern legal tendencies. They present no new question, but one which seems painfully slow in settlement. The bar itself must take the leadership, for it has been generally recognized that a false conception of ethics is more often to blame than deliberate violation of the law. Existing conditions tend to create disrespect for the law and evasions of it. So many agencies have pointed the way which must be taken that there ought now to be no difficulty in following it.

BETTER RADIO.

American users of the radio may well see good times ahead in several respects. The broadcasting situation, under management of the Federal Radio Commission, shows signs of clearing up considerably. There still exists heterodyning and interference, but as a whole the air is much clearer since the reallocation of wave lengths was effected. As days pass by there is every reason to believe that the crowded air will be cleared still further, and that with added experience behind it, the commission will be in a better position than ever to deal intelligently with the involved question.

Of equal importance is news just now leaking out, that corporations which own and control the basic patents upon which receiving equipment is built have come to an agreement releasing to one another their basic rights. When new sets are made available in the fall it will be possible for the purchaser to obtain a receiver combining the best combined developments of many engineering laboratories. Basic patents are held in the main by the General Electric Co., the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., the Radio Corporation of America, and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. By agreement, responsible manufacturers now are being licensed to manufacture equipment utilizing circuits and parts heretofore available only to the owner of the patent right.

Better broadcasting should result from the work of the Federal Radio Commission. Better sets are sure to result from cooperation in regard to basic patent rights. It looks like good times for the radio user, and for the broadcaster and manufacturer as well.

CIGARS AND CIGARETTES.

The Department of Commerce reports that during 1926 there were approximately 1,660,000 acres planted in tobacco throughout the United States, the production from the crop amounting to nearly 1,325,000,000 pounds. The combined production of cigars in registered factories and in bonded manufacturing warehouses came to more than 7,000,000,000, of cigarettes practically 100,000,000,000, and of chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff, 415,000,000 pounds. About 10,000,000,000 cigarettes were exported, leaving approximately 90,000,000,000 for home consumption. Forty-two per cent of all cigars manufactured were intended to retail for not more than 5 cents. Only 2 per cent were intended for gentlemen who feel no compunction in paying more than 15 cents each for their smokes.

The American demand for tobacco products becomes greater every year. Yearly average production of cigars between 1891 and 1895 was 4,300,000,000, and of cigarettes 3,500,000,000. Ten years later cigar production had climbed to 6,500,000,000 annually, whereas the demand for cigarettes had decreased until factories were called upon to produce a yearly average of but 3,200,000,000. Between 1911 and 1915, however, the tide had turned definitely in favor of the cigarette, and production reached an average of 14,800,000,000 as against but 7,088,000,000 cigars. Since then cigar production has become stabilized at between 6,500,000,000 and 7,000,000,000, whereas cigarette production has climbed from 52,000,000,000 in 1921 to the present 1926 peak of 90,000,000,000.

It is highly improbable that the increase in population accounts fully for the enormous climb in the production figures for cigarettes, especially in view of the fact that the number of cigars manufactured has increased but slightly. There must have been a change in American smoking habits. The answer is found in the new freedom of women. Only since the war has femininity dared admit addiction to the weed. Only within the last few months have manufacturers dared publish pictures in their advertising matter of women puffing daintily at cigarettes. Old-fashioned people may deem women's smoking, but the manufacturers of cigarettes welcome the new order, which has brought unparalleled prosperity.

Leon Daudet is released by a hoax. But isn't that what the whole affair has been?

The Georgia governor who rises at dawn and goes to bed at 9 o'clock must lead a lonesome life.

The rate at which Canadian provinces are deserting prohibition is a powerful argument for annexation.

What with disasters and great stunts crowding on us, what the United States needs is more and better adjectives.

The Kean-Edge struggle for control of the Republican party in New Jersey may develop into a cutting scrape.

There Is At Least One Sympathetic Soul.

PRESS COMMENT.

Scanties.
Lafayette Journal and Courier: "There's many a slip," but there isn't much to some of 'em.

Horn Tooters.
New Albany Tribune: The only ones who toot automobile horns continuously and unnecessarily are children too young to understand or persons mature in body and immature in brainpower. If one could only realize how idiotic useless tooting sounds and looks, the annoyance it is to other persons, the guilty ones surely would cut it out. It is idiotic for people of mature age.

The President's Smile.
Topeka Daily Capital: That picture of Cal on his rear platform en route to the Black Hills presents him with the first real smile, easily recognizable as such, yet exhibited in the presidential photographs. It suggests that the camera may never before have done justice to the Coolidge smile, and on the other hand, it may be just that he is off for his first vacation in the West.

The 100 Per Cent Job.
Davenport Democrat: Our idea of a 100 per cent job is being a summer White House scout for President Coolidge.

Trouble Breeders.
Atchison Globe: A young man who has lots of friends willing to get him out of trouble, is apt to get into a lot of trouble.

Fantastic Today.
Philadelphia Ledger: By lightly passing his hand over a glass sphere, without touching it, Judge Gary, in New York, was able to set in motion the gigantic Homestead steel plant near Pittsburgh. Another instance of the fantastic fancies of yesterday becoming the commonplace of today.

Heart Trouble.
Cincinnati Enquirer: Biologically the heart is developed before the brain, and the number of June marriages indicate, perhaps, that it is still supreme.

Why Not Print It?
Indianapolis News: Twenty-six million postal cards are now printed every day and on most of them somebody writes: "Wish you was here."

So That's Why.
Springfield Republican: Flights over the arctic have been suspended. It's a poor place to get a crowd, anyway.

Doers and Blowers.
Kansas City Times: Broadly speaking, men who get into the public eye are divided into two classes, the blowers and the doers. The blowers are always telling what they are going to do and sometimes doing it. The doers let what they do speak for them. While other people were doing a lot of talking about the flying to Paris they proposed to do Lindbergh came 'opping across the continent unheralded, casually remarked when he reached New York that he might try for Paris, and then almost as casually hopped off and reached his goal. Last year when the fliers were attacking the North Pole with much commotion Lieut. Comdr. Byrd drove in Spitzbergen and flew to the pole and back almost before the public knew that he was planning the flight. Experience goes to confirm Lincoln's comparison of the big talk men to the steamer on the Sangamon River with the enormous whistle. When it whistled it had to stop running and when it ran it had to stop whistling.

Work Is Just Play

By ROBERT QUILEN

IF a man thinks life is hard, the fault is not in life but in the man's thinking. His opinion is not a product of reasoning, but of resentment; and the thing he resents is not the hardness of life but the fact that necessity drives him.

Consider the identical nature of play and labor; at once it appears that labor is nothing more than involuntary play.

Primitive man hunts and fishes to get a living. He faces rain and snow and sleet or toils under a broiling sun, and as he labors to land a fish or plants on the trail of a wounded buck he reflects that life is hard and nature without mercy.

Yet civilized man rejoices when he can get away from his accustomed duties to sit in the rain and wait for ducks or climb mountains under a heavy pack to get a pair of goat horns.

One feels abused and the other is happy, and the difference is all in the point of view.

The painter and the carpenter are slaves of necessity, yet many an office man delights in similar work when his office work is done. The child in a school thinks "parallel reading" a burden, and yet finds pleasure in reading other books no whit more entertaining.

Few tasks to which men are driven by necessity require as much self-denial and physical effort or offer as much hazard as football. Few labors are as strenuous, few methods of bread-winning as monotonous as golf.

Digging up weeds is labor; digging up bait is fun; and there you have the whole of the story. If you weren't doing what you must do to earn a living, you would be doing something else equally tiresome in order to escape boredom. The brick mason who is getting $15 a day may yearn for the leisure to play golf, but hire him to play golf at $10 a day and within a week he will be asking for shorter hours or inventing a machine to do the work of the clubs.

Let the American call his job a "game." It is the sensible thing to do. Work is just play you get paid for.

Don't dodge responsibility. When a bee comes under the windshield, stop the car yourself instead of trusting to a telephone pole.

This is the season when the gardener must decide whether it is cheaper to buy vegetables or back planters.

And in the flying era of 1926 boastful dads will tell complaining sons that they drove a flivver to school back in the primitive days of 1927.

Troublesome Efficiency.
Emporia Gazette: Two things have been working together to reduce the price of "crude." On the refining side, the introduction and perfection of the cracking process has steadily reduced the amounts of crude oil required to meet the country's need for gasoline. On the side of production, the introduction of better drilling and artificial lift methods has largely increased both the current production and the supplies of crude oil in sight, and this has steadily postponed the day of crude oil scarcity for which the refining side of the industry has been preparing.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Let Snoopers Testify.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Government, both local and general, is deemed inefficient by a class and they have appointed themselves as deputies. If this assistance is accepted by the authorities and cases are made thereby, it would be proper that the informant be placed on the stand when the case is called, to give direct testimony. When a slip-up takes place, somebody is going to be sued, and those with property had better be careful how they bank on the verdict of a jury.
FRED T. HAFELINGER.

Welcome to Bergdoll.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial in The Post in which you comment upon the desire of a man named Bergdoll, said to be American by birth—I refrain from mentioning his "given name" out of respect to the memory of a great American—meets with the approval of all my comrades in the A. E. F. who have read it. In my opinion, judging from the many of those comrades with whom I have talked today, no editorial utterance of a Washington newspaper in recent months, has been more widely read. If, in order to obtain the chance to look upon the face of the man who desires to "demonstrate his courage," it may be found necessary to pass the hat to gather the funds needed to buy him means of aerial transportation, I am certain that the organizations known as the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion will gladly undertake the task of raising those funds.

On the other hand if the Bergdoll is financially able to purchase his own plane we urge The Post to have its European correspondents advise the world immediately after the start is made, in order that the members of the A. E. F. who desire to do so may gather at the landing fields along the Atlantic seaboard to extend to him an appropriate welcome.

TARE FEATHERS.

Baseball, Prize Fights and Music.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We are writing you, not in the spirit of a constant advertiser making demands or suggestions for the news columns of your paper, but in the spirit of a local institution which is greatly concerned about the cultural welfare of our city. We notice that every newspaper in Washington, with the exception of The Washington Post, gave prominent and liberal space to the announcement of the sponsors of the Washington Opera Company's performances for the coming season. The Washington Post did not print a line, so far as we can find, regarding this important news item.

Perhaps we may be wrong, but in our opinion the Washington Opera Company is the only big thing of cultural importance which has not been thrust upon the people of our city by Congress, but which, to the contrary, represents an institution built by and for the people of our city. Given the same support by the local newspapers as that which the St. Louis Opera Company enjoys through the St. Louis newspapers, the Washington Opera Company will grow to be a monument to the culture of our city and Washington will become internationally known for the fine things which it does rather than for the things which are done for it.

It is regrettable that the paper to which we turn for things of culture has found it wise to give page upon page of publicity to baseball and prize fights, but to ignore "our own" opera company. Yours very truly

Women's Hygienic

Mistakes

Being ended—New way discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

BECAUSE one woman told another, and because doctors and nurses so urged, millions of women are discarding old-time sanitary ways for the new way called Kotex.

First, you discard Kotex as easily as tissue. No laundry, no embarrassment. Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads, it enables one to wear sheerest frocks and gowns without slightest fear of embarrassment. Also deodorizes, thus ending all danger of offending. Eight in every 10 better-class women employ it. Once you use it you'll never again dare the uncertainty of old ways. Obtain at any store simply by saying "Kotex." Box contains 12. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

Accessories

Was there ever a time when a Man's outfittings for various sports did not demand apparel peculiar to the sport in mind? If so, it must have been years removed, for nowadays if he plays tennis his clothes must be vastly different from those he wears "on the green."

Here one may find a wide variety of the absolutely essential garments for every popular sport.

Fine Quality Linen Knickers in five different patterns, including several plaid effects. $6.

White Duck Trousers, full-cut, nicely tailored. $3 Pair. Riding Breeches, $8.50 to $20.

3-pc. Suits, $35 to $45.

Perhaps the exacting demands of appropriateness for the individual sport at hand are slightly less noticeable in the case of accessories than clothes. But most everything from shirt to socks must be peculiarly suitable.

And, with this idea in mind, we have selected haberdashery that every sportsman will want to wear when he plays "the 4th." Fill your needs here—a confident feeling of correctness will help your game.

ALL IN CHINESE VILLAGE
END LIVES, SAYS WILBUR

Commit Suicide Rather Than Face Future Misery, He Declares.

LAUDS U. S. FLOOD RELIEF

Syracuse, N. Y., June 26 (By A. P.).—The story of how the inhabitants of a whole Chinese village committed suicide by drowning rather than face the uncertainties of a future of misery, was told here tonight by Secretary Wilbur, of the Navy, in a speech before the New York Christian Endeavor conference.

Pointing out how the spirit of human brotherhood had increased in the Western World to the point that relief of the distressed was regarded as an obvious duty, he added:

"I was told recently of a case where the inhabitants of a village in China were impoverished by a raid of bandits to such an extent that they saw no means of maintaining their food supply. They held a consultation as to what should be done and after due consideration they all decided to commit suicide, which was done by jumping down into the river and drowning. It did not occur to them that anything would come to their aid or be under obligation to do so."

He contrasted with this the immediate, spontaneous relief offered publicly in the Mississippi flood by other American emergencies, as showing the feeling of human brotherhood engendered by Christian teachings. The sympathy felt for farmers was another instance, the Secretary said, of the duty felt to help sufferers. Congress had approved the McNary-Haugen bill, he said, in an effort to pledge the entire nation for the relief of their difficulties.

"The President," he continued, "voted this bill, not because he was not in sympathy with the idea of assisting the farmer, but because he believed that the methods invoked would be disastrous not only to the farmer but to the country in general. The point is that the Nation stands committed to an attempt to relieve the farmer of the difficulties in which he finds himself regardless of the fact that to extend this relief involves the shouldering of others of this burden."

Gale Holds English
On U. S. Navy Ship

Hastings, England, June 26 (By A. P.).—Three score visitors aboard the U. S. S. Detroit, anchored five miles off shore, unable to leave the ship last night, owing to a sudden gale, had to be accommodated there, while 200 blue-jackets from the Detroit for the same reason were marooned ashore for the night.

The jacks spent the evening in places of amusements. Many of them ran short of cash and sought aid from the police, who found them lodgings for the night.

Owing to the huge seas the Detroit was unable to hoist her boat aboard and sent it back to the shelter of the Hastings pier, where a large crowd appeared long-distance jumping ashore from the tossing craft by the crew.

SOVIET ADMITS CHINA
REVOLT IS A FAILURE

Admission Brought Out in Charges Made Against Trotsky and Zinovieff.

Moscow, Russia, June 26 (By A. P.).—Leon Trotsky and Gregory Zinovieff, two of Soviet Russia's most radical products, again have come up for official punishment. The presidium of the central committee of the All-Russian Communist Party, of which the powerful Stalin is the guiding spirit, having recommended the dismissal of both Trotsky and Zinovieff for violation of party discipline, it is taken for granted that the party will adopt the recommendation.

The most important point coming to the surface in the present controversy perhaps, is an open assertion of the partial failure of the Chinese revolution. The counts upon which the presidium took action included a recitation of "continuous attempts by Trotsky and Zinovieff to break party unity at a time of serious international complications, aggravated by partial failure of the Chinese revolution and of facilitating the activities of anti-Soviet agitators within the Soviet Union."

Belgian Fish Famine
Caused by Rotarians

Ostend, Belgium (By A. P.).—The fish eating abilities of Americans attending the International Rotary conference at Ostend caused a fish famine in part of Belgium.

In normal times the Ostend fishing fleet can provide plenty of fish to supply the wants of its visitors, but the supplies have been far from sufficient on this occasion. The fish hunger has been manifest particularly among American Rotarians from the inland States, with whom fish is a rare dish at home.

GRAND PRIX ENDS PARIS
SEASON IN HEAVY RAIN

Only 35,000 See Fitterati Win Race; Raincoats Hide Bright Apparel.

O. MILLS' HORSE FOURTH

Paris, June 26 (By A. P.).—The wind-up of "La Grande Semaine," which ended the social season in Paris, came today under extremely unfavorable weather conditions. There was a steady rain, and the air was raw and chilly, as if it were winter time, and only 35,000 determined souls went to the Long-champs race course in the Bois de Boulogne to see the running of the grand prix. Most of them returned home disappointed because the favorite failed to win.

The race, with its rich prize of more than 800,000 francs (about $160,000), was captured by M. P. Moulin's Fitterati, ridden by P. Herve. Mon Talisman, owned by Martinez de Hoz, of Argentina, finished second, half a length behind Fitterati, and Baron Edmond de Rothschild's Piemant, with Sieve Donoghue, the noted English jockey, in the saddle, third, three lengths in the rear. Ogden Mills' Lusignan, with Easing up, was fourth. Sixteen horses ran.

Society saw the race as usual, but the crowd there was little that caught the eye except umbrellas and raincoats, in which the lower lake region, and the western Rocky Mountain region, while they have risen over the plains State.

President Doumergue was there and most of his cabinet, Marshal Foch, Marshal Petain and half a dozen generals, as well as six or seven ambassadors. But of mannequins there weren't enough to satisfy the photographers, and of tourists, fresh from the warmer and drier air of other lands, there were few who cared to shiver and get soaked in order to say they had seen the grand prix.

For once there were chairs for everybody, and those people who can not afford new clothes at each changing moon felt comfortable. Ten minutes before the big race was run the rain ceased, and the mass of umbrellas which had made the earlier races difficult to observe were closed. Wild cheering began as Mon Talisman was seen to be running neck and neck with the leaders as the horses swept into the straightaway. Then Fitterati forged in front slightly. Mon Talisman challenged bravely but could not cut down the distance, and the two horses drew away from the rest of the field in their great struggle over the final few hundred meters of the 3-kilometer race.

Governor of Georgia

Atlanta, Ga., June 26 (By A. P.).—Dr. L. G. Hardman, of Commerce, Ga., retired physician and former legislator, was inaugurated yesterday as Georgia's fifty-sixth governor to succeed Clifford Walker, who completed two terms of two years.

In his inaugural address the new governor, who is 71 years of age, promised the State a strictly business administration "devoid of partisan politics."

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND THE CHARACTERS.

Christine Vane, pretty, popular, just 19, is invited to the commencement exercises of the University by the handsome friend of her childhood, both of whom are in love with her. They are:

Harvey Stanton, handsome, brilliant, aggressive, and his cousin and roommate, Lewis Hayes, brave, dependable, doggedly determined to make his mark in the field of chemical experimentation.

Harvey proposes to her and is accepted, so Lewis goes away without telling her he loves her on the eve of the wedding of Christine and Harvey. A year later their son is born.

Lewis has returned to town, meanwhile, and is working for the firm which employs Harvey. He tells Harvey he has discovered a chemical formula of great industrial value. Harvey undertakes to get his uncle, the president of the company, to put it across.

Soon after the birth of the second child Harvey announces that he has been taken into the firm following his discovery of a formula for making rubber. Lewis, meanwhile, has lost his job, his money being a failure, and he goes away.

With the money from Harvey's product the Blantins build a beautiful home. Christine has every luxury, but she is happy only with her children. She finds that Harvey's friends are strangers to her.

A chance meeting with Lewis reveals to her that the old friendship between him and Harvey has been broken. She is then disturbed by Christine's complete absorption in her children, persuades her to broaden her horizons. Christine's first venture is to marry a job as a secretary in a busy office.

Her funds are exhausted and she has no choice. Her first venture is a proposal of marriage from the proprietor. These she meets quite by accident. Their friendship is renewed, since he does not hold her against her late husband. She is then called to a "Caretaker's Office," and succeeds in selling them. But had luck follow, Cousin Anna is called away from New York, and Christine has to find a new home. Lewis proves his friendship by helping her to move.

She will permit Harvey to be killed in an automobile accident and leaves nothing behind. Christine fails ill and is in a hospital for weeks. But her caretaker job and her magazine work are gone when Christine recovers, and she is obliged to accept financial help from Lewis.

When he begs her to marry him she consents, first out of gratitude, second because she hopes to atone for the wrong, and third because she is desperate. But the marriage ceremony is hardly over when she realizes that she can never live with him at his wife. Her husband is a man who works on the staff of a magazine, but she soon loses it due to the jealousy of her superior.

At the same time she learns that her son has a weak heart. A series of jobs finally lands her on the staff of a magazine, and she is introduced to a millionaire, who is known as a backer of theatrical enterprises. He takes a fancy to her.

She writes a play and goes to his apartment to read it. His conduct so affronts her that she leaves her home in a rage, and having her play produced is gone; but she forgets that and everything else when her son falls dangerously ill.

In a fit of rebellion and recklessness she calls on Sanford.

On her way to keep an appointment with him, she meets with an accident which prevents her from going. She is grateful to have been saved from her folly.

The suit which follows serves to introduce Christine to Clifford Vane, a man who has been in the army and is now a successful business man.

She finds in him an understanding friend.

THE MIRACLE OF LOVE.
Chapter II.

CHRISTINE'S discovery that she was in love with Clifford Vane had a curious effect upon her. Instead of being unhappy—since his attitude toward her betokened no more than the sincerest friendship and admiration—she was radiantly happy over the mere fact that she had been loved.

It seemed to her very wonderful that this new and beautiful emotion should have come to her after her years of disillusionment and discouragement. She had believed her heart to be quite dead to the call of romance. From Harvey Blanton she had learned that love can be shame and betrayed. Lewis Hayes unwittingly had taught her that love can be a torment. Sanford had sickened her.

It remained for Clifford Vane to teach her, all unknowingly, that love is radiant and beautiful—all the more so when it comes as a quiet haven after the storm. For the first time she learned the meaning of living without hope of return. She found joy in the mere giving of her heart to a man who did not guess what precious gift was in his keeping. Or the first time, since that horrible day when she had recoiled from Lewis Hayes' arms, she understood and pitied him. He had loved her, as she loved Vane.

She found a new joy in living, with the thought of Vane jealously guarded in her heart. There was a reason for springing out of bed in the morning, for singing over the preparation of breakfast, for hurrying away to her work—for would she not see him some time that day?

There was a new urge in her work. She wanted to do something big, write something splendid, that she might hear his praise.

One afternoon when work was slack and there was an idle hour, she thrust a sheet of paper into her typewriter and began to write.

She had been doing a series of short sketches entitled "The Memoirs of a Wife," for the first magazine for which she had ever written. She had dipped her pen into the bitterness of her heart and had written out of the fullness of her experience.

But this afternoon, when she whiled away a quiet hour, the story that she wrote was a sweet little romance of youth and love—a thing of moonlight and jasmine—the sort of thing the mere thought of Clifford Vane aroused in her heart.

"Your work here is never finished, Mrs. Blanton," was the stern reply.

She chuckled happily to herself as she wrote, and she made an implausible face at the old, cynical Christine who looked mockingly at some of her tender passages.

Suddenly a shadow fell athwart her page. She glanced up to meet the grim, unsmiling glance of her chief.

"What is that you are doing, Mrs. Blanton?"

Instinct had prompted her gesture which had written words, and the same instinct prompted her to lie—and lie quickly.

"But that new something in her made her say truthfully:

"It is a short story that just occurred to me. My own work is finished."

"Your work here is never finished, Mrs. Blanton," was the stern reply.

"None of us can ever finish all there is to do. You should have come to me for instructions, if you had an idle hour. I suppose it's not the first time you have made use of working hours for your own advantage."

She thought of "The Memoirs of a Wife," and she nodded.

"But only once or twice," she faltered, "and then only when my desk was cleared."

"That is something we can not overlook," he said. "If your work did not occupy all your time, you should have told me so. Now, since you admit to having made use of my time, it is impossible for you to remain here any longer."

"You mean I'm fired?" gasped Christine.

He bowed and turned away, after mentioning something about her salary.

Christine could hardly believe her ears. She had tried so hard. This job had been her one hope. Now it must be the old, weary, disheartening round again, with perhaps failure at the end—

BEAUTY AND YOU

By VIOLA PARIS

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

DEAR VIOLA PARIS—Could you kindly advise one what I should do for slight lines that have appeared at the corners of my eyes and under them, right on the cheek bones? I have massaged the lines, but without favorable results.

R. L.A.M.

Answer—If I knew your age and your habits of life I could advise you somewhat better. I have an idea that you are in your twenties; if this is so, you are really too young to be bothered with many lines. Are you getting enough rest and sleep? Are you worrying needlessly? Are you tense, the sort of person who finds it hard to relax?

Besides following just as sensible a health program as you know how, you may be benefited by applying lanolin around the eyes each night at bedtime. Don't bother about massage; just spread the lanolin on in a thin film after thoroughly cleansing the skin. Do not use very hot water around the eyes, but bathe them always with plenty of cold water.

Dear Viola Paris—I am 19 years old, 5 feet 2 inches tall and weigh 102 pounds. Is this correct? I have dark brown hair and gray eyes. What colors would suit me best?

K. L.

Answer—Your weight is very good. As to colors, I should think that you wear almost any of the fashionable ones that appeal to you. It depends somewhat upon the coloring of your skin, which you have not described to me. If you are pale you should avoid gray. Blue is smart at present and its various shades ought to be very becoming to you.

Anxious—I do not think you ought to use clay on your face. It is much too drying for you. A film of facial oil left on overnight would be preferable to cold cream.

Florence W.—You can safely use boric acid solution or the eye drops, but better still, would be better care of your eyes. If you do not abuse them, and if you lead a wholesome life, they should not be dull.

Destitute—Your questions about blemishes have been extensively answered in recent articles. A bleach cream would not be harmful, but it would not remedy this particular condition.

"Miss Troublesome"—For the lines under the eyes, see my answer to the first letter in the column today. The soap you are using is quite all right for your hair if you find it satisfactory. Liquid shampoos are usually more easy to manage. A little hair naturally comes out in the shampoo. It is nothing to worry about.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WHEN TO USE YOUR ELECTRIC FAN. WHEN we think of discomfort due to the weather, whether hot or cold, the thought runs only to temperature. The ordinary thermometer is the only instrument of measurement. The talk is all about degrees of heat. When this is so, distrust in thermometers naturally follows. "The thermometer is no good," "The thermometer lies," "Gee, it must be hotter than that thermometer shows!" What's the trouble?

Temperature is an important factor. But so is humidity, and likewise air movement, and neither of these is considered when we read an ordinary thermometer. This story deals with air movements as one of the three important factors in comfort.

At the ordinary temperatures air movement promotes comfort. When the air is moderately hot comfort is promoted by stirring the air. This stirring on a large scale goes by the names of winds and breezes; on a retail scale, it is known as air currents. These air currents are produced by fans from the big whirlwind follows down to the palm leaf, which is driven by hand power.

But at both ends of the temperature scale, the air, which is the medium of movement, causes discomfort. When the air is cold, wind makes it worse. The body heats up the air which is held in contact with the skin by the clothing. A wind, breeze, or air current will blow the warm air out of the mesh of the cloth and from the skin under the cloth and cause discomfort. Arctic explorers and it possible to live outside in comfort when the ordinary thermometer registers 25 to 50 below zero, provided there is no wind. But if a driving wind is blowing they must get under shelter or they die.

Feet swell on warm days. Mrs. L. H. W. writes: My feet swell, are feverish and ache during warm weather, especially if I am compelled to stand a great deal. I have practically no discomfort of this kind during cold weather. Can you tell me what will relieve the situation?

REPLY. Bathing your feet in cold water at least once daily will help. Perhaps there is some virtue in the local remedies on the market.

You should make certain that you have no kidney, heart or liver trouble, and no varicose veins or other evidence of obstruction in the pelvic regions. How about round-the-leg garters and other bands?

At the other end of the line, so long as the temperature of the air is lower than body temperature, say about 100, a wind promotes comfort. A person living in such air should be helped out by fans unless nature supplies the breeze. If power fans are not available the hand-driven article is a moderately satisfactory substitute, even when the suffering man must supply the power. If one is a maharajah he will have slaves or servants to fan him of that sort to ply the turkey tail. But once let the temperature go much over 100, still air is cooler than moving air. Hot winds are hotter than hot, still air, and fans in boiler rooms and bakeries are such places only make matters worse. Certain States require fan ventilation in mines. The requirement is a good one except it be in very hot mines.

The amount of moisture in the air affects the temperature level at which we should stop the fans or come in out of the wind. When the air is saturated the level for stopping the fans is several degrees below that which is advisable when the air is dry.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES McDONALD

Rescue the Bank Account.

DEAR Miss McDonald: One year ago I met a young lady and we fell in love and were together every night until a discussion arose regarding our religions. I am Jewish and she is gentle. I told her that it surely was a shame that this was the case. I felt we could never mean anything to each other if I had my sister and brother to think of my aunts and uncles also, and they would all forbid me marrying this young lady out of my religion. I feel that this is the only real love I have ever known, and being 23 years of age and having had quite a bit of experience in infatuations know that she is the only one for me and she has often told me that the feeling is mutual. We love one another regardless of our consideration for our relatives, but still we want to do the right thing. I feel that I have my own life to live and that my relative won't do me any good if I should marry someone that I do not care for but who appeals to them. Now, should I marry one of their liking, my only realization would be to help her in financial matters, whereas if I marry the one I want I will automatically cut myself off from my relatives. I should find another who has a little girl, and he feels that I could never be happy with her, and that I could never feel a love for this child. I should find another who has never been through life like this and marry in my religion. Please tell me what you think of this case. I am willing to sacrifice most anything to have her here with me again and feel that even though it would cut me off from my relatives I could still have lots of congenial friends to enjoy their ways.

THE MILES WERE LONG IN OLDEN DAYS. And neighbors dwelt apart; They shaped their thoughts and fixed their ways.

To speed of horse and cart. And those who ventured down to sea. For months were watched for anxiously.

But now the miles are swift and short. And through the open sky. The sturdy voyager reports. Their wanderings far and high. A boy across the seas has swirled. And made a neighborhood of the world! (Copyright, 1927, Edgar A. Guest.)

Pres. Heydler Overrules Protests

National League Head Backs Umpire in Two Cases.

Phillies and Dodgers Had Questioned Decisions.

NEW YORK, June 26 (By A. P.).—The protests of Philadelphia and Brooklyn that umpires' adverse decisions cost them games with Cincinnati and Chicago, respectively, on May 21, and requests for replay of the contests were overruled today by President John A. Heydler of the National League.

The league head found that Umpire Wilson was correct in insisting that the ninth inning of the game at Brooklyn be completed, even though the contest was not finished in time for Chicago to catch a train at 5:45 p. m. in accordance with a prior agreement.

President Heydler also ruled that Umpire Farnham was right in deciding that a wild pitch made by a Cincinnati hurler against Philadelphia permitted runners to advance only a single base.

Philadelphia protested that a two-base advance should have been allowed, placing the Phillies in a position to score enough runs on a subsequent play to wipe out Cincinnati's 6 to 5 margin of victory.

The decision placed the play within rule 54, which permits a runner on base to advance only one base on a wild pitch unless he is struck by a batted ball.

Brooklyn's protest claimed the Chicago game would have resulted in a 5 to 2 win rather than an 11 to 6 defeat if the game had been called at the agreed time.

President Heydler ruled the umpire was correct in starting the final inning with 9 minutes before the time limit and within his rights in keeping the inning going, although it took 30 minutes to play and resulted in 11 Chicago scores.

Mickey Walker Cut Over Eye by Pardner

London, June 26 (By A. P.).—Mickey Walker, the American titleholder, received a serious cut over the eye in his final hard workout today in preparation for his bout, Thursday night, with Tommy Black for the middleweight championship.

Taking on George West, a rugged English middleweight, Walker started early in the first round, punning and swinging with great power and speed, and some of his crashing forehand drives across court to Miss Goldsack's right were wonderful efforts of great skill and pluck.

Miss West's arrival into the quarter final by defeating Miss Eile Goldsack, showed more convincing tennis than the California girl has displayed during the week. She produced a rare turn of speed, served more powerfully and some of her crashing forehand drives across court to Miss Goldsack's right were wonderful efforts of great skill and pluck.

The progress of the little girl to the quarter final through defeats of Frautlein Ausser, Mrs. Molla Mallory and Mrs. John Hill, the English covered court champion, was responsible for packing the Wimbledon stadium in such a manner never equaled by Suzanne Lenglen in the heyday of her popularity.

U. S. Players Wimbledon Favorites

America, With Small Entry, May Annex Both Singles.

Betty Nuthall Draws Larger Crowd Than Did Suzanne.

WIMBLEDON, June 26 (By A. P.).—The first week of the Wimbledon tennis tournament closed with the chances of the United States to carry off the championships in both the men's and women's singles as bright as that of any country represented.

The Americans with a small entry list held their own against 24 countries, some of which had three and four times as many players.

T. Hunter in the men's division, and Miss Helen Wills and Miss Elizabeth Ryan in the women's section, all in the quarter final, the United States appears to be certain to be heard from in the final.

Despite the fact that all the world famous players appeared on the center court during the week, three of the six days belonged to Betty Nuthall, England's schoolgirl champion, who proved a big favorite with the spectators.

Lisenbee to Face Red Sox At Boston This Afternoon

Nationals May Sign Riley Today—Poison Leaving Judge's System—Harris Looks Over Mallet.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

IMMEDIATELY after yesterday's game the Nats and Red Sox boarded the Federal Express for Boston, where they will complete the current season with games at Fenway Park this afternoon and tomorrow. Manager Harris figures that with the lowly Nationals count just as much in the "won column" as those that others enter in the league and will put forth every effort to cop the pair.

Instead of trying to save some railroad fare and hotel bills by leaving some of his men behind, he took the whole gang, even including Walter Johnson, who hurried yesterday and consequently is sure not to be needed. Horace Lisenbee, the youthful Washington mound ace, did not take the trip from the Hub here, and he will do the Harriman fling this afternoon, with Charlie Ruffing likely opposing him.

Either Hollis Thurston or General Alvin Crowder will pitch tomorrow. The General did not look so good of late, but he is not yet ready to be dropped. It is hoped that this merely was an off-day and that he will come back with some of the form he showed against Chicago and Detroit.

First Baseman Joe Judge visited the Nats in their locker room before yesterday's game, but he will not be available for another week. He states that all of the soreness has left his arm, but the lancets as a result of opening his infected finger are deep and will not heal for several days.

Speaker deserves much credit for trying to fill the P. O. box and he is doing as well as could be expected of a

Golfers Seek M. A. Title Today

Voigt to Defend His Sectional Crown. 120 Entered.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

NORFOLK, Va., June 26.—The course of the Norfolk Country Club was crowded today with contestants in the championship tournament of the Middle Atlantic Golf Association, which begins tomorrow.

The field numbers over 120 entries, comprising golfers from Washington, Baltimore, Richmond and Norfolk, and the qualifying round will be 36 holes, eight on tomorrow and an additional eighteen on Tuesday.

It was announced today that five sixteen, instead of three, as originally decided upon, would qualify.

The list of entries published in The Post this morning, while complete at the time of publication, has been materially increased by the additions of well-known Washington golfers today.

Among those whose names have been entered are George J. Voigt, present champion; Charles Mackall, of Chevy Chase; Page Hurty, Gardner P. Orme, Carl Griffith and Miller Stevenson, of Columbia; and A. L. Houghton, of the Manor Club.

The course is totally unfamiliar to the Washington players; in fact, this is the second year that it has been played, for the old course of the Norfolk Country Club was taken over by the Federal Government. Even under the handicap of comparative unfamiliarity, the course is in excellent condition.

The meeting of the Middle Atlantic Golf Association, which will be one of the features of the tournament, will be held at the Monticello Hotel, which is the headquarters of the Washington contingent. An entire floor in the hotel has been assigned to the Washington golfers.

NEW YORK, June 26 (By the Associated Press.)—Continued gradual slackening of various branches of industry last week was attributed to seasonal influences, and nothing developed to indicate any weakening of business foundations. No declared slump anywhere in prospect, and preparations under way for fourth quarter operations in some branches gave evidence of a general feeling of optimism.

Steel operations declined from those of the preceding week, but had been expected, and little quickening in this trade is believed probable until August. Prices appeared somewhat uncertain, but this was in large measure due to the slowness of orders in the last few weeks. Inquiry for railroad steel developed with considerable vigor.

HIGH-GRADE LIST ACTIVE
Call 1000. 1314 14th St. N.W. Main 1000

NEW YORK, June 26 (By the Associated Press.)—The bond market was a whole lot less active than it was a week ago, with a few new issues, which have been a major factor in price trends for several weeks. Mortgages of the higher grade, however, displayed a few signs of increased vigor.

Anticipation of the $300,000,000 aggregate of dividend and interest payments due next month was partly responsible for a better inquiry for gilt-edged issues. Hope was held in bond investors that the influx of this enormous amount of money seeking investment would do much toward clearing away a substantial part of the surplus new material remaining unsold in the hands of various dealers. Sharp reduction in this surplus could reasonably be expected to stimulate prices somewhat.

Recent gradual increases in bond
quotations on the stock exchange also
has had a part in reviving inquiry for bonds. However, the market has been brought down to a level where they are in position to compete with the new issues. Tapering off of new offerings,
however, has not been sufficient to create a more comfortable feeling in the general market.

New material unabsorbed has reached treacherous volume during the week.
Recent gradual increases in bond
quotations on the stock exchange also
has had a part in reviving inquiry for bonds. However, the market has been brought down to a level where they are
in position to compete with the new
issues. Tapering off of new offerings,
however, has not been sufficient to
create a more comfortable feeling in the general market.

That new material should pile up on dealers' shelves is not remarkable in view of the heavy flow of new offerings since the first of the year. In the first five months more than $400,000,000 in new financing has been placed on the market, and of this great amount bonds totaling in the neighborhood of $100,000,000 were offered in two months, April and May.

While June offerings have failed to keep up the fast pace of earlier months,
they have nevertheless arrived in sufficient volume to add to the market's symptoms of indigestion. The total of the last week was near $200,000,000, a small amount compared with the weekly average of 1927, but still admittedly a considerable quantity of new financing.
New offerings in the week before last aggregated about $100,000,000 and in the third week of June, 1926, something like $125,000,000 came into the market.

Credit-wise, the week was divided into two periods, each marked by the same factor. Government financing poured a large sum of money into the credit reservoir, creating a few days of relatively easy rates. A similar sum taken by the Government from the reservoir was not felt until the latter part of the week, when checks issued for tax payments began to find their way back to the banks for clearance.
A slight tightening of rates was the result, and expected result.

Announcement by the Treasury that it had purchased about $64,000,000
Liberty second 4½s from holders, paying approximately 100½, was an interesting development which appeared to have no effect on the market for bonds.
Decrease of about $20,000,000 in Federal Reserve system's "gold holdings" also went without apparent influence. Since gold holdings in this country comprise about $4,000,000,000, it is hardly significant that a change of $20,000,000, or so, one way or the other, would occur without creating more than a ripple in the money market.

hundred shares, the New York Curb Market today celebrated its 25th anniversary indoors with total par value of stocks now dealt in exceeding $14-000,000,000 in addition to 200,000,000

approximately 1,600 stocks and bonds listed. Recently the privilege of asso-

Nedick's orange juice business, which has grown in thirteen years from a small store to a chain of 133 units, will be opened to public participation through financing now being negotiated with its bankers. A bond issue of Ned-market within a few days.

BUSINESS IS STEADY, DESPITE SLACKENING OF FEW INDUSTRIES

No Real Slump Anywhere in Prospect—Car Loadings Again Heavy.

EFFORTS TO CUT DOWN PRODUCTION OF OIL FAIL

Crop Outlook Is Spotty; Textile Business Slow; Credit Tightens Up.

New York, June 26 (By the Associated Press).—Continued gradual slackening of various branches of industry last week was attributed to seasonal influences, and nothing developed to indicate any weakening of business foundations. No decided slump was anywhere in prospect, and preparations under way for fourth quarter operations in some branches suggested a general feeling of optimism.

Steel operations declined from those of the preceding week, as had been expected, and little quickening in the trade is believed probable until August. Prices appeared somewhat uncertain, but with the market generally due to the slowdown of orders in the last few weeks. Inquiry for railroad steel developed with considerable briskness, giving promise of good business later in the year.

Freight loadings in the week ended June 11 crossed the million-car mark for the ninth time in 1927 and represented substantial increase over the total for the week before. Compared with the corresponding week of last year, however, a moderate decrease was shown. Motor and grain shipments recorded good gains over both related periods, while coal continued to lag behind.

New Oil Production Record. Despite intense efforts to bring about a reduction of crude oil operations in the Seminole field, another new record for production was marked up in that district, carrying the output for the entire week to unprecedented levels. Uncovering of new pools in the greater Seminole area has added thousands of barrels to the daily average, and has mitigated powerfully against efforts to curtail the flow of petroleum.

The motor industry as a whole was in the midst of its seasonal slump, although a few manufacturers here and there were operating at a high percentage of capacity. Active preparations were being made for the fourth-quarter activities, which in the opinion of some executives, will develop briskly and comparatively early. Publication of purported details of the new Ford model created a stir of interest during the week, but the reported specifications were later characterized by Ford officials as "pure guesswork."

Corn Reported Far Behind. Varied conditions existed among the crops. Corn was reported far behind its usual progress this time of year, and there were growing prospects that this crop will be small. In some sections, the corn is now getting its first cutting, but in other sections it is still in the seedling stage. Cotton was reported to be in good condition, but harvesting of winter wheat was being delayed by weather in some sections of the north. Grain exports declined from the preceding week, but with the same period of last year. Prices of grain showed some improvement both in price and volume, but cotton was relatively active. Farm implement buying was less brisk than in recent weeks. Credit conditions tightened slightly toward the end of the week with the return of cash checks to the banks. Bank clearings were around 6.6 per cent under those of the foregoing week, but increased slightly over the related week of 1926. Bank debits exceeded the figures for both the corresponding periods.

PLANT EMPLOYMENT SHOWS A DECREASE

Chicago, June 26 (By A. P.).—Declines of 7 per cent in the number of workers employed in manufacturing plants in the Seventh Federal Reserve District for the period April 15 to May 15, as shown in the monthly report of conditions to be issued July 1 by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. The report also will show a decrease in earnings of 2.0 per cent for the same period.

These changes are less favorable than a year ago, when the decrease in employment was the same, but the earnings decline was only 0.1 per cent. The decreases this year are confined mostly to the metal industries. The food, textile, and building materials groups, except lumber, however, show gains. Railroad car and automobile industries are maintaining their levels of employment, but show a falling off in pay rolls.

Reports from Detroit indicate a decided drop in employment there subsequent to the second week in May, amounting by the second week in June to 18.2 per cent.

New York, June 26 (By A. P.).—Hu-ling started in 1921 with only a few hundred shares, the New York Curb Market today celebrated its anniversary indoors with total par value of stocks now dealt in exceeding $14,000,000 in addition to 250,000 shares without par value. There are approximately 1,600 stocks and bonds listed. Recently the privilege of association of membership was extended to foreign banks and members of the London, Paris, Amsterdam and Berlin Stock Exchanges.

Nedick's orange juice business, which has grown in thirteen years from a stock of 100 shares to 100,000, will be opened to public participation through financing now being negotiated with its bankers. A bond issue of Nedick's incorporated with warrants entitling the holder of each $1,000 bond to purchase 20 shares of no par common stock. BOND MARKET SUFFERS FROM NEW OFFERINGS

Enormous Influx of Securities Causes "Indigestion" in Week's Trading.

HIGH-GRADE LIST ACTIVE

New York, June 26 (By the Associated Press).—The bond market as a whole last week continued to reflect the over-supply of new issues, which has been a major factor in price trends for several weeks. Mortgages of the higher grade, however, displayed a few signs of increased vigor.

Anticipation of the $500,000,000 aggregate of dividend and interest payments due next month was partly responsible for a better inquiry for gilt-edged issues. Hope was held in bond circles that the influx of this enormous amount of money seeking investment would do much toward clearing away a substantial part of the surplus new material remaining unsold in the hands of various dealers. Sharp reduction in the quotations on the stock exchange also has had a part in reviving inquiry for first-class securities, as they have been brought down to a level where they are in position to compete with the new issues. Tapering off of new offerings, too, has created a more comfortable feeling in the general market.

New material unsold has reached tremendous volumes during the last week, but the reported specifications of the aggregate running as high as $700,000,000. The steady increase in brokers' loans to an unprecedented total is also a factor in the heavy flow of new offerings.

That new material should pile up on dealers' shelves is not remarkable in view of the heavy flow of new offerings since the first of the year. In the first five months more than $4,000,000,000 in new financing has made its appearance on the market, and of this great amount bonds totaling in the neighborhood of $1,500,000,000 were offered in two months, April and May.

While June offerings have failed to keep up the fast pace of earlier months, they have nevertheless arrived in sufficient volume to add to the market's symptoms of indigestion. The total of the last week was near $800,000,000, a small amount compared with the weekly average of 1927, but still admitted a considerable quantity of new financing. New offerings in the week before last aggregated around $108,000,000 and in the third week of June, 1926, something like $125,000,000 came into the market.

Credit-wise, the week was divided into two periods, each employed in the same factor. Government financing poured a large sum of money into the credit reservoir, creating a few days of relatively easy money. The money taken by the Government from the reservoir was not felt until the latter part of the week, when checks issued for tax payments began to find their way back to the banks for clearance. A slight tightening of rates was the normal and expected result.

Announcement by the Treasury that it had purchased about $64,000,000 of Liberty second 4½s from holders, paying approximately 100½, was an interesting development which appeared to have no effect on the market for bonds. Decrease of around $20,000,000 in Federal Reserve system's "gold held abroad" also was without apparent effect. Since gold holdings in this country comprise about $4,600,000,000, it is hardly significant that a change of $20,000,000 or so, one way or the other, would occur without creating more than a ripple in the money market.

MOVEMENTS ON CURB ARE HIGHLY IRREGULAR

Central Leather Stock Is Outstanding Feature in Week's Trading.

OILS GENERALLY WEAK

New York, June 26 (By the Associated Press).—Price movements in the curb market last week were highly irregular, with declines in the majority. Most of the buying support was based upon special considerations, such as favorable dividend and merger developments. Central Leather stocks were the outstanding individual feature of the week, moving steadily upward in response to ratification of merger plans by the stockholders. Ford Motor of Canada rose rapidly on publication of details, later denied, of the new Ford model. Celanese issues and Bancitaly continued to attract buyers.

Oil generally were weak in reflection of mounting crude output, now at

EMERGENCY AIRPORT WILL BE SELECTED WITHIN FEW DAYS

Commissioners Will Pass on Recommendations During Coming Week.

COMMERCIAL GROUPS
HOLD MEETING TODAY

Civic Bodies to Devise Program for Temporary and Permanent Landing Field.

The matter of selecting a temporary landing field for the planes of the new air mail line which in a short time will begin operation from New York to Atlanta will be definitely settled this week under the program which is being followed by Maj. W. E. R. Covell, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, and Lieut. Donald Duke, of the Army Air Corps, who are in charge of airport activities.

By the end of the week, Maj. Covell expects to be able to make his recommendation to the Commissioners. After their approval is obtained, and the location definitely settled, the work of providing equipment will begin. It is likely that the recommendation for a permanent airport site will be made along with that for the temporary or emergency site.

The special committee of the Chamber of Commerce, of which Jerome Fancullini is chairman, will meet again at 3 o'clock this afternoon to complete its deliberations upon the point of an emergency site.

Joint Meeting Today.

The whole airport problem, however, will be thrashed out before a joint luncheon meeting of representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade, the Merchants and Manufacturers Association and the City Club, at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow at the City Club.

Addresses will be made by F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War in charge of aeronautics; William P. MacCracken, Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics; W. Irving Oliver, Second Assistant Postmaster General in charge of air mail; Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and Maj. Covell.

An attempt will be made to reach a program of airport development, both temporary and permanent, so clear in sound judgment that all citizens may array themselves behind, and support it without stint or reluctance. It is recognized that whole-hearted support is the first requisite, and that without it any accomplishment, whatever it may be, is doubtful, and that the better and more desirable conceptions of airport development will be shattered.

Midcity Association Will Discuss Taxes

Property taxes in the District of Columbia and the airport for Washington will be the two principal topics for discussion and action at the closing meeting of the season of the Midcity Citizens Association tonight at 8 o'clock in the Thompson School, Twelfth and L streets northwest.

A. J. Driscoll, president of the association, declared yesterday the increased taxes would be a serious drawback to government employees and others who are purchasing their homes on nominal salaries. He pointed out that the "road" season of the Midcity Citizens Association, an improved playground for Thompson School and the widening of streets.

Dusty Miller Saves Youth From Canal

Plunging into the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal at the foot of Third Street northwest yesterday, Dusty Miller, 3027 Canal road northwest, saved Cyril Washington, colored, 18 years old, 1108 Eighteenth street northwest, from death by drowning.

The colored youth was walking along the towpath near the water's edge when he lost his balance and tumbled into the water. Attracted by his cries for aid, Miller rescued him.

Small Boy Injured When Struck by Auto

Four-year-old Donald Thornton, 7 Eighteenth street southeast, was severely injured yesterday when knocked down by an automobile in front of 1808 V street southeast, from death by drowning.

He was treated at Casualty Hospital for a broken right arm, cuts about the face and bruises. His condition was classified as serious. Charles J. Dorrak, 1717 S street southeast, police report, drove the automobile.

The Public Utilities Commission will hold a public hearing in the District Building today on the application of the Capital Traction Co. for permission to substitute motorbuses for street cars on Third and Kennedy streets northwest to Takoma Park, Md.

$4,500 Conversion Case Hearing Today

James R. Walsh, 34 years old, president of the Bankers Service Corporation of America, will be given a preliminary hearing in Police Court today on a charge of conversion after trust, involving $4,500. Mrs. Jimmie Henderson, 1701 Massachusetts avenue northwest, is the complainant.

Mrs. Henderson swore a warrant for Walsh's arrest, charging that she gave him $4,500 to complete a real estate deal with the provision that $2,000 collateral security be redeemed in a week. The week elapsed, she said, and the collateral was not redeemed. She declared her suspicion was aroused and she hired private detectives to investigate. Detectives John Fowler and John Flaherty, of headquarters, served the warrant Saturday night. An hour after his arrest Walsh was freed in $2,800 bail.

CITIZENS HOLD F. L. DANE ADMITTED BUS CONTROL

Will File Brief With Utility Board Today, Citing North American.

INQUIRY AGAIN IS ASKED

Supporting its contention that the North American Co. owns a controlling interest in the Washington Rapid Transit Co., the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations today will file a brief with the Public Utilities Commission containing a public statement made last year by Frank L. Dane, president of the North American Co.

Dane, in the statement, according to Maj. Clayton Emig, acting chairman of the committee, declared the North American Co. owned a controlling interest in the bus company and was willing to enter into a merger with other traction companies here. The statement was made public November 2, 1926, Emig said.

The committee in the brief reiterated its request that an investigation be made of the business operations of the bus company. Congress has empowered the commission with authority and funds to make such an investigation, Emig said. If the commission will not make the investigation, he would lose faith in the Federation of Citizens Associations will raise funds to pay for it, Emig asserted.

PASTOR DENOUNCES SPYING ON CITIZENS BY CHURCH GROUPS

Dr. Shacklette Declares That Human Race Has Too
Many Petty Laws.

SAYS POWER OF CHRIST
WILL OVERCOME EVILS

Dr. Abernethy Asserts Yelps of Foes Are Indicative of Success.

Declaring that the church has no right to use "the sword of the magistrate" or to organize itself into a vigilance committee to bring about the downfall of persons who have sinned, the Rev. William S. Shacklette, pastor of the Church of the Advent at Second and U streets northwest, fired from the pulpit a volley of criticism on the subject, "The Church and the State."

Dr. Shacklette, in the course of his sermon, defined the duties of the church, and pointed out that there is a sharp dividing line between church and state activities. He said, "Certainly it is not for the church or any other organized body to usurp the function of the law-making or the law-governing body, creating an espionage into the private life of citizens who have a high regard for personal liberty."

Later he added, "We are living in an age of law making and law breaking. There are too many laws. We can not remember them. The human race is more deeply concerned with the laws that govern its life for eternity than it is about the innumerable petty laws emanating from the imaginations of self-righteous individuals."

I dare say that opponents to the stand I have taken are saying, 'When you cast a yelp, you know that one dog was struck,' Abernethy said, 'judging from the number of yelps heard last week, a good many must have been struck.'

Dr. Abernethy would say nothing of the future activities of the citizens' organization. "We have been so misrepresented by the newspapers that we have decided to give them no more information," he said.

Dr. Everett B. Ellison, secretary of the law enforcement body, would make no comment on the statement of Police Sgt. Little, chief of the liquor squad, who said that less than a dozen arrests have been made on information given by the association.

Negro Bishop Appeals For Civil Reform Here

A word of advice to colored citizens against joining with any law enforcement organization having as its purpose the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, but not the civil rights measures enacted in the negro's behalf, was voiced yesterday by Bishop E. D. W. Jones, of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church. He said: "I hope negroes will be very careful in subscribing to the reform efforts launched in the District of Columbia, unless they include civil as well as moral reforms. Negroes appear always willing to help others work out their pet reforms, but these same people are seldom willing to help the negro in his struggles for the reforms he most craves."

"Washington is one of the most prejudiced cities in America. Attention should be called to this fact, and such American evils as Americanism, this head should be included in the churchman's movement to rid the city of harmful vices. If white preachers, from whom the negro has suffered more than from any other source in American life, want to clean up our city, let them begin on the individual forces of prejudice which do the most harm."

War-Time Uniforms For Legion Meeting
